

Construction Contracts & Procurement

Our detailed knowledge and experience of the construction industry ensures we offer a unique service to our clients during the construction contract phase and throughout procurement.

Construction Contracts

The importance of having clear, concise, accurate contracts in place on construction projects in advance of any work taking place cannot be underestimated. In today's market as profit margins shrink and spending on construction projects diminishes having the correct documentation in place in advance is critical.

Our detailed knowledge and experience of the construction industry means we offer a unique service to our clients during the construction contract phase. Kreisson understands how construction works, and we know how to avoid the myriad of pitfalls in construction contract drafting to ensure that our documents cut to the heart of transactions and clearly allocate risks to minimise your exposure.

Procurement

With our detailed understanding of construction, we can help your business to implement and develop its procurement process to effectively ensure the correct procedures are in place from the outset of any construction project. We work with your business to ensure the correct level of support required for your business through the procurement process.

Kreisson offers support from early project planning, procurement strategy selection, use of contract templates and guides, tendering and preparation of tender documents, selection of contractors and consultants, the choice of contracts, contract administration, conduct of project workshops and meetings, performance monitoring and management.
